

Wintech opens US office in New Jersey

A new branch of Wintech has opened for business in New Jersey as the company expands its international horizons to the United States.

It will be the main station for managing new and existing projects in facade engineering consultancy in North America.

Last year Wintech move into its new UK headquarters at Pen-deford, Wolverhampton, and the existing branches in London and Dubai have continued to grow for the company.

"The formation of a United States office is a really exciting opportunity for Wintech. We aim to directly deliver our unique skill set of facade engineering and detailed design services to the US, building significantly on our experience of this market.

"We feel our specific skills in the environmental engineering aspect of performance façades being a key USP in this new market for Wintech whilst maintaining our overall goal of improving both the quality and value of the façades for our clients," said managing director Paul Savidge.

Wintech's move to new, larger premises in Pendeford was aided by an £890,000 financial package from Lloyds Bank Commercial Banking, which helped to create more than 20 new jobs. The 10,000 sq ft office is double the size of the firm's previous base.

Founded in 1983, Wintech now employs more than 100 people.

MARCH 17